Soviet Spaceman Back; Orbited Earth 17 Times

MOSCOW (AP)—Maj. Gherman Stephanouch Titov, the newest Soviet space traveler, returned safely from a 25-hour flight around the earth, the Soviet Union announced, and this feat, in effect, gave man a flight ticket to the moon.

'I feel very well," the 26-year-old air force pilot told Premier Khrushchev by telephone. He covered roughly the distance of a trip to the moon and return in 17 orbits of the earth, the Soviets said.

Khrushchev promised Titov a heros reception on his arrival in Moscow from somewhere in the interior.

"We shall give you a worthy welcome in Moscow, as a whole people, as a whole country," he said.

After 25 Hours

Titov returned 25 hours and 18 minutes after he blasted off on a journey of about 435,000 miles, the announcement said.

He was reported to have eaten, slept, and manually operated the five-ton space craft Vostok II as he whizzed at about 300 miles a minute at an altitude ranging from 110.5 to 159.59 miles above the earth.

He was fired into orbit Sunday morning and a writer for the Soviet news agency Tass said his silver space ship looked like a "roaring fiery globe" as it shot upward.

Moscow radio said Titov came down near the landing site of the first Soviet spaceman, Maj. Yuri Gagarin. Gagarin is thought to have landed about 450 miles southeast of Moscow on his return from a single trip around the earth April 12.

There were no details and no indication whether the ship landed intact. The Russians said Gagarin's Vostok I landed without damage.

Titov told Khrushchev he had successfully completed his task, had been given a big reception on the ground, had a drink of water, and felt fine.

The Soviet Communist party and government proclaimed that Titov's flight showed manned spaceships will soon "blaze space routes to the moon, Mars and Venus."

In a joint statement they praised "the new tremendous achievement of the Soviet Union, our science and technology, the entire national economy and the great advantages of the socialist social system which is the most progressive in the world."

Moon Shot?

In London, Kenneth Gatland, vice president of the British Interplanetary Society, said it was likely the Russians would put a man on the moon in 1966 or 1967, with a reconnaissance flight much sooner.

"What is so interesting about this latest Russian success," he said, "is that Vostok II had enough air and food provisions in it for a round-the-moon reconnaissance flight which would last for about five to eight days.'

The flight kept much of the world on edge for a day and night. The pilot's series of radio messages—he called himself "the eagle"—were often spiced with a cool touch of bravado.

Huge crowds gathered around loudspeakers in Moscow's streets as an announcer reported that Titov had landed safely. Then they drifted away.

Adding to the interest of both scientists and the layman was the news that the young astronaut went through the every-day routine of eating lunch, supper and breakfast while hurtling through space in a state of weightlessness.

Crowning Proof

The crowning proof that man can survive this aspect of the rigors of space flight came when the pilot said he peacefully snoozed on his form-fitting flight couch more than eight hours.

Before dozing off, he radioed Moscovites: "Good night. You can do what you want, but I am going to sleep."

Titov said he overslept and fell more than 30 minutes behind his flight duties. At one point, he described his accommodations in the space ship cabin as "complete comfort, complete comfort. I wish you had it so good."

The flight of the Vostok II appeared to be much more significant than that of Titov's flying comrad, Gagarin, who returned from Canada to join in the welcoming ceremony.

Soviet officials said the flight was intended to determine how man will bear up under the strain of weightlessness in a long space flight that would be encountered on flights to the moon.

Scientists on the ground said they observed Titov's reactions by means of two-way radio as well as TV and intricate telemeter devices.

Titov, a light-haired Russian, was made a full member of the Communist party by Khrushchev, the first of many honors that probably will be heaped upon him.

Titov telephoned Khrushchev at the Kremlin after the premier sent him a message saying his "heroic deed" had shown "once again what Soviet man, educated by the Communist Party, is able to do."

Khru Says West Is Pushing World To Dangerous Brink

SOVIET SPACEMAN RETURNS—Tass, the Soviet news agency, says this picture shows cosmonaut Gherman Titov waving to people welcoming him on his return from his cosmic trip aboard space ship "Vostok II." No location of Titov's landing place or welcome was given.

Claims Reds Do Not Seek Any Trouble

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev accused the Western powers Monday of "pushing the world to a dangerous brink" in the quarrel over Berlin and said he may have to mobilize reserves and move more Soviet divisions to the western front in Germany.

But he insisted the Soviet Union is not seeking trouble and in these words urged negotiations:

"Let's sit down around a table and negotiate in an honest way.

"Let's not create hysteria.

"Let's clear the atmosphere, let's rely on sense and not on the strength of thermonuclear weapons."

The 85-minute speech — transmitted by radio and TV over the Soviet Union and parts of Europe including Germany—was delivered in comparatively calm tones.

Khrushchev had praise for the newest Soviet conquest in space but he did not brandish it — as had been expected in some Western quarters—as an overriding power factor.

The speech was aimed mainly at President Kennedy, whose address 10 days ago to the American people on Berlin and the world situation is reported to have angered the Soviet leader.

The President, Khrushchev said, was "presenting us something in the way of an ultimatum."

Kennedy, Khrushchev said, was replying to the Khrushchev proposals for a peace treaty with Germany with threatening measures to increase war strength.

Khrushchev gave little emphasis to his plan announced nearly three years ago to change the status of Berlin by his own hand unless the West agrees to all his terms.

Appealing to the Soviet people to understand if he has to call up more men for the Soviet army, and making no reference to the American plea to let the German question rest for awhile, Khrushchev said:

Dangerous Course

"The United States is in effect carrying out measures in the nature of a mobilization, and is threatening to start a war. Its allies in the Western bloc support this dangerous course.

"When a situation like this arises, it would be impermissible for us to sit with folded hands."

But the Soviet government has examined the situation and has decided that no increased expenditure would be needed now, he went on. He said the rocket strength, other arms in being and already being manufactured, would secure the country's safety.

"The Western powers are now pushing the world to a dangerous brink," Khrushchev continued, "and the threat of a military attack by the imperialists on the Socialist states is not to be ruled out.

"We shall watch the developments and act according to how the situation shapes up.

"It may be that we shall have to increase in the future the numerical strength of the army of the western frontier by moving divisions from other parts of the Soviet Union. In connection with this, we may have to call up a part of the reservists so that our divisions have a full complement and are ready for any actuality."

President Kennedy showed common sense in wishing to avoid war, he said, but he added that expressions of common sense are not enough.

And How To Avoid Its Use

Western Powers Embark On Task Of Arms Buildup

PARIS (AP) — The United States, Britain, France and West Germany, after three days of top-level talks, set out Monday night on the difficult task of building Allied military strength in Europe while searching out means of avoiding its use in the tension-packed Berlin crisis.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk polished up a report he will make to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council Tuesday, recommending that NATO forces be brought up to full strength by addition of 75,000 to 80,000 men, weapons, equipment and transport.

West Determined

Experts of the four powers went to work on ways to further impress the Soviet Union that the West is determined to preserve West Berlin, refusing to back down in the face of Communist threats, but willing to negotiate the entire Berlin and German problem if given a reasonable basis.

The ministers spent two days on the Berlin issue and then the three Western diplomats concluded in emergency conference at noon Monday after a discussion on South Viet Nam, Laos and other Southeast Asian problems.

Rusk told British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and France's Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville American economic and military efforts are starting to bring about an improvement in South Viet Nam's battle against Communist infiltration from the north.

The ministers went on to other global problems only after they were satisifed they had achieved unity with West Germany's Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano on how to proceed on the Berlin and Germany questions.

The Western camp was visibly elated at Von Brentano's reaffirmed declaration in the name of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer: West Germany has complete faith in her Western allies and prefers to remain outside any approach to the Soviet Union in order to avoid muddying the water. Von Brentano told the ministers the Bon government is confident its interests will be best served by American, British and French negotiators.

Conference sources said the Paris talks served two purposes on the Berlin problem:

1. All previous plans and positions were brought together for another look, a search for a hole in the Soviet armor through which the West may still drive home its main point of preserving West Berlin's 2½ million people from being gobbled up by the surrounding East German Communist regime.

2. A new round of diplomatic activity is spurred, first by assigning the standing four-power working group on Germany to new efforts, next by another Western foreign ministers meeting during the U.N. General Assembly meeting in New York in September, and perhaps after that by some recommendations for arriving at talks with the Soviet Union.

Demands Are Exorbitant

Met Cancels Opera Season

NEW YORK (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera, blaming "exorbitant demands" of its 90 orchestra musicians, canceled Monday its 1961-62 season and along with it the annual spring tour of America.

There have been two cancelations in recent years that never went into effect, when labor differences were patched up.

The Met has had 76 seasons without missing one yet, but there have been some close calls.

This time General Manager Rudolf Bing said "I see no hope" for retrieving the season. He even was gloomy about 1962-63.

The crux of the situation was that since July 30 the top stars and even the lesser ones—without a renewal of their contracts — have been free to make other commitments.

And Bing said "we cannot have a season without these singers."

He said as many as a score or perhaps two dozen of the artists—last year's roster listed 117 singers in that category — "already have been lost." He declined to give names, saying he did not want anyone to get the impression anyone had been disloyal.

A spokesman for the musicians' union said "The Met has presented its side. We want to study its statement very carefully. We will then present to the pubic our side of the story. We ask everyone to suspend judgment until then. We are just as much interested in keeping the Met open as anyone else."

The cancellation affected some 400 persons directly connected with the operatic productions, such as singers, musicians, the chorus, the ballet and the administrative and technical staffs. But with the workers behind the scenes added in, Bing estimated 650 to 700 are involved.

Clark, Others Push Support For Area Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—An assertion by an administration spokesman that he could give only qualified support to a bill that would provide additional funds for area redevelopment drew immediate criticism Monday from Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa.

Clark, presiding at a Senate banking subcommittee hearing on a bill that woud authorize the government to guarantee industrial mortgages much as it does housing mortgages, accused the administration of reluctance to go along with the program.

Louis G. Feldmann, representing the Northeastern Pennsylvania development commission, said numerous Philadelphia and northeastern Pennsylvania banking institutions and chambers of commerce support the bill.

Vivian P. Edwards Jr., vice president of the Northeastern Pennsyvania National Bank and Trust Co., reported the endorsement of the Pennsylvania Bankers Assn. for the measure.

And, with a large delegation from Pennsylvania on hand to testify in support of the bill, Clark declared:

"It seems to me there should be some response to bills introduced by congressmen rather than just quick response to bills sponsored by the administration."

He said that in the long struggle that preceded passage of the distressed areas aid bill there should be no question that "some kind of legislation" is needed to provide extra risk capital for area redevelopment.

Compromise On Trailer Bill

HARRISBURG (AP)—A legislative conference committee, acting with unusual speed, Monday night approved a compromise agreement on a long-stalled bill to raise the legal length of truck trailers from 35 to 40 feet.

Legislative sources, who declined identification, said the agreement provides that the state lift for five years its present prohibition against allowing tractor-trailers longer than 50 fet on he roads.

It was understood that beginning Jan. 1, 1962, truck firms could start operating the longer rigs on state highways providing the combined tractor and trailer doesn't exceed 55 feet.

'Absurd' Says Republicans

Demos Present Redistricting Plan

HARRISBURG (AP) — Amid a flutter of brightly colored maps, Democrats Monday presented their long-awaited plan to redivide the state's congressional districts. "Absurd" said the Republicans.

Thus the scene was created for a political contest that promised to be a cross between musical chairs and surgery.

The "music" would be the dissonant chorus of legislative debate. When it stops, prospects are some congressmen will be dispossessed from their jobs.

Poised in front of a large map in his legislative command post, Democratic floor leader Stephen McCann termed his party's plan "fair and equitable."

Since Republicans said the same thing about their redistricting plan, presented more than a month ago, lawmakers are now confronted with the problem of arriving at a fair and equitable compromise.

It was Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom who pasted the labels "absurd" and "legislative monstrosity" on the Democratic plan. Gov. Lawrence termed the GOP proposal "silly."

Both measures would eliminate three of the state's 30 congressional seats because of population shifts recorded in the 1960 Census.

There most of the similarity ends.

The Democratic plan virtually would assure elimination of three Republican congressmen. The GOP plan would just about guarantee termination of a like number of Democrats.

The most objectionable feature of the Democratic plan in Republican eyes is the proposal to expand two of Philadelphia's six Democratic-controlled seats to include parts of suburban counties.

Specifically, Haverford, Radnor, Marple and Newtown townships, Delaware County, would be annexed to Philadelphia's proposed 2nd District. Bensalem Twp., Bucks County, would be added to the city's proposed 5th District.

Elsewhere, the Democratic plan would square off these incumbent congressmen, if they seek re-election: Reps. Francis Walter, Democrat, and Willard Curtin, Republican; John Dent, Democrat, and Irving Whalley, Republican; Ivor Fenton and Herman Schneebeli, both Republicans.

Tremendous Margin

As drawn in the plan, the Democratic congressmen would have a tremendous vote margin over the Republicans. Only one congressman, Walter, has indicated he will not seek re-election.

Seven existing congressional districts would not be changed, though six would be assigned new numbers. The districts and their proposed new numbers (old numbers in brackets) are: 6th Philadelphia (6th); 9th, Montgomery (13th); 10th, Lancaster and Chester (9th); 15th, Cumberland, Adams and York (19th); 21st, Wash- (26th); 22nd, Lawrence, Butler and Beaver (25th); 23rd, Erie, Crawford and Mercer (24th).

Though the two plans seem mostly at odds, there are apparent areas of agreement between GOP and Democratic proposals. Both propose a district representing the present 26th, Washington, Greene and Fayette. Also, both plans put Northampton and Bucks counties together in a new district which, coincidentally, carries the designation 8th in both plans. The two counties presently are in separate districts.

The GOP plan would lop a seat from the Philadelphia total and virtually would eliminate the Democratic-controlled Berks County seat by putting the county in a new district with Chester County.

The average congressional district in Pennsylvania on a 27-seat basis would have a population of 419,000.

Indict Jet Hijackers

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—A federal grand jury indicted Leon Bearden, 38, and his 16-year-old son, Cody, Monday in the hijacking of a jet passenger airliner here last week. They will be arraigned in U. S. District Court later this week.

Authorities said the teen-age boy will be tried as an adult along with his father on a charge of conspiracy to commit kidnaping.

Charges against the Beardens, of Coolidge, Ariz., included kidnaping three members of the plane's crew and conspiring and agreeing to transport in foreign commerce.

The elder Bearden also was charged with interstate transportation of a revolver by a person convicted of a crime of violence. Leon Bearden is an ex-convict who was convicted on a robbery charge.

The conspiracy charge said the Beardens made reservations by phone from their home in Coolidge for two seats on Continental Airlines flight 54 leaving from Phoenix, Aug. 3. The reservations were made July 17 under the aliases of Karl and Bob Schmidt.

The charge said they seized the plane by force at 1:55 a.m. in the air over New Mexico and told the pilot to fly the plane into Mexico. Their ultimate destination, it was said, was Havana, Cuba.

When told the plane was short on fuel they forced the pilot to land at El Paso for refueling, the indictment said. While on the ground they held the pilot and four hostages from among the passengers at gunpoint.

Easton Man Dies In Boat While Fishing

LOUIS H. Coyle, 59, of 1026 Hay Terrace, Easton, left his home yesterday morning to go fishing in Saylors Lake. It was to be a day of relaxation but it didn't turn out that way.

After fishing the morning and catching several bass he and his friend, Fred A. Buttler, returned to the lake for the afternoon. Shortly after leaving shore several more fish were caught and Coyle decided to clean those that he had caught.

While leaning over in the boat he told Buttler that he was going to pass out. Buttler summoned some bathers about 100 yards away and they got the boat ashore and began working on the man until Dr. Morris Josell, a summer resident of the lake, arrived and pronounced Coyle dead.

Monroe County Coroner Daniel G. Warner was summoned and after examination he said death was the result of a heat attack. He listed time of death as 2:10 p.m.

Coyle was an employe of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. in Easton.

The body was released to the Fisher Funeral Home, Easton.

Dear Abby

He Likes Off-Beat

Dear Abby: I am in love with a man my parents hate. I'll call him Joe. My father checked up on him, and now he won't let me go with him. Joe is a musician. He plays the drums. My father says a drummer is no musician; that a person who plays the piano or violin can call himself a musician — but a drum is no instrument. Is this true?

Also, my father found out that Joe is 28. He lied to me and said he was 24. I lied to my parents and said he was 20. (I am 17.) I want to know: No. 1 — If you could call a drummer a musician? And, No. 2 — if you think, as long as he is a gentleman, my parents should let me go with him?

JOE'S GIRL

Dear Girl: No. 1: A drummer IS a musician. But what's all this jazz about his lying about his age? That is another kettle of drums! Tell your drummer boy to play it straight, or beat it!

Dear Abby: What do you do with a boy who says the only reason he wants to kiss you on the lips is to taste your lipstick?

MADELINE

Dear Madeline: Turn your cheek to him, and tell him not to do you any flavors.

Dear Abby: A neighbor, who is impossible to talk to, throws bread in his yard every day to feed the pigeons. The pigeons fly back and forth from his roof to mine all day long. They have nests in my chimney. I don't have to tell you what a couple of hundred pigeons can do. It is impossible for me to hang out my washing. And to enjoy sitting outside is out of the question. Every day more join the flock. Do you or any of your readers know any way to get rid of pigeons? Or do they do some good that I don't know about?

PIGEON HATER

Dear Pigeon Hater: The most constructive function ever credited to pigeons was carrying messages, and Alexander Graham Bell put them out of that business years ago. But pigeons can still carry diseases. If your neighbor is "impossible" to talk to — talk to the Board of Health, and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby in care of The Daily Record. Enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Flight From Tunisia

Opposition To Bourguiba Not Expressed Openly

(David Ottaway, son of publisher, was in Bizerte when fighting broke out there between Tunisians and French. He sent The Daily Record eyewitness and reaction accounts from Tunisia and now writes from Europe).

By DAVID OTTAWAY

NICE—It is only because French citizens were forbidden to leave Tunisian territory that I was able to find a place in one of Air Tunis' DC4s. Few planes are flying between France and Tunisia. Air France had cancelled all commercial flights out of Tunisia starting July 23.

Contrary to official policy there have been some French persons leaving the country. On the plane to Nice there were many family groups of French speaking and looking persons. They seemed to be going on or coming from vacation.

At the time of checking out with Tunisian police I saw several special "authorization" papers handed over the counter. However, such persons and families remain the exception and not the rule. Also at the airport at the moment of my departure was a huge group of disappointed faces. These people were waiting in anticipation of a change in French-Tunisian relations. It may come at any moment of any day, they were told.

The fight back to Nice was smooth and beautiful. The only disturbing note came from the gentleman sitting next to me. I noticed when I sat down that he was nervous and unsettled. I thought also he was surely French. My curiosity was thoroughly aroused when he told the stewardess he had no passport.

The story he related to me during our two and a half hours of flight time may seem incredible. I was convinced soon enough that he was telling the truth.

What reason had he to lie? I had heard of similar happenings indirectly from other Tunisians but never directly from a victim himself. Our conversation went something like the following.

"Are you French, sir?"

"Yes, I am."

"You're certainly lucky to be leaving. I understand that all French were forbidden to leave the country."

A short silence followed. My curiosity was pushing me to probe further. However, I thought best to wait and hope. I was not to be disappointed.

"My case is a special one. Personal offense. I spent two days in jail and what treatment! No water or food. No bed. I had to sleep on the floor. The guy in the cell with me was crazy, could hardly speak French and did nothing but mumble the entire time.

"It's incredible the way they treated me. Grabbed me one day at the port in Sousse and hauled me off to jail. They don't even let me return to the house to pick up identity papers and a few belongings. No one knew what had happened or where I had gone. Not even my servants.

"And to think it was the first time I decided to spend the summer in Tunisia. Usually I go to France. Cannes or Nice. This summer I bought a beautiful new motor boat and decided to stay at home. I was just running the boat in the harbor two days ago. Giving it a little exercise. The motor is new, you understand.

"For two days in a row the guy who runs the port told me it was not possible to take boats out of the port. Police ordinance. It's been posted on the dock since Bizerte blew up.

"Finally Monday after the cease fire was announced, the guy at the port said I could run the boat around a little but that I couldn't leave the harbor entrance.

"As I got into my boat I rubbed against the police ordinance and tore it in two. (He never made it clear whether he had torn the poster on purpose or by accident.) The next thing I knew the guy had called the police and they were there at the dock."

"That's crazy. Is that all it took?"

"That's all."

"Have you had trouble before?"

"Never. I was born in Sousse and lived there all my life. I know everybody there and they all know me. I teach in one of the French lycess in Sousse. I'm an instructor in drawing. Lucky I have some money in France. They didn't give me time to do anything. I don't even have my passport. Two disgusting days in jail and then out of the country."

"Do you think it was because of Bizerte and current problems between the two countries?"

"It's possible. But ever since five years ago things have not been easy for us French. (Tunisia gained her independence in March, 1956.) One friend I know had his store taken away from him. The police simply told him he hadn't paid enough taxes last time. And there are others with similar histories.

"That's fantastic! It's a wonder you people stay there at all. Why haven't you left before?"

"I was born here! All my friends are here! What do you expect? Then, too, we got used to the treatment. We learned how to live with it, what to do and what not to do. After that you just hope for the best."

Outside all is calm. There are mares' tails in the sky above me. Rain perhaps. Below there are a few white puffy clouds and off to the left I see the trace of a steamship in the blue Mediterranean. The plane's four motors drone on in the peace of the sky. After seven days of running about Tunis and Bizerte, of anxious moments beneath the fire of guns, of little sleep and much talk, I am finally relaxing a little.

Yet next to me is a man whose nightmare has just begun. Banished from his home for having torn in two a police ordinance. For a while he would try to sleep. Then he would read. The book is a police novel called "A Cry in the Street." Once again I think back to Bizerte and the cries I had listened to for three days and two nights.

"Do you think you'll be allowed to go back after it is all over? Did they tell you for how long you were expelled?"

"They didn't tell anything. Not a thing. I have a lawyer but he's Tunisian. Since Tunisian independence he has been less dependable. He has to play along with the government, too, you know. I don't know, maybe he can have my affairs sent back to France. But my house and new boat!

"I don't know what I'm going to do! Maybe they will let me back in; maybe not."

"Don't they need French teachers? Won't they need you at the Lycee? Most of the teachers are French speaking still, aren't they?"

"About half of the teachers are French speaking. The rest are Tunisian. Not all are French. Some are Maltese, Belgian or Italian. They need teachers but they are slowly getting rid of the Europeans and replacing them with Tunisians. I don't know whether they need me or not."

"The whole thing must be sort of a nightmare for you."

"It sure is. I don't know what I'm going to do when I get to France."

I asked him in the course of our irregular conversation about resistance to Bourguiba and his regime. He assumed there was plenty but it was not worth your life to express it. Also he said there is no organization for this opposition.

Other Tunisians of Jewish origin had told me earlier the same story. Plenty of Tunisians are dissatisfied, ever scared, but it is not worth saying so.

The Jews I met and talked with are certain that Bourguiba is against private business. "It's a question of time before he stifles private business and then forces the Jews to leave. I'm going to France next year," is what one person related to me.

Of the 220,000 Europeans who constituted the foreign population in 1956, at the time of Tunisian's independence, about 110,000 have left. Slowly others are leaving due to various circumstances. The situation is uncertain. Bizerte will mean serious trouble for the European population.

Those French living in Bizerte are going to find life extremely difficult as soon as the paratroopers leave. The Tunisians are not likely to forget that for three hours before French paratroopers arrived civilians in the city fired upon their soldiers. Many volunteers and soldiers were killed. Many were wounded. One wounded volunteer called it "treacherously betrayed" by the European population at Bizerte.

French inflence has hit an all time nadir in Tunisia. If life was difficult but bearable for Europeans before the coup de force at Bizerte, it may well become insufferable from now on.

New Hospital Wing To Increase Bed Capacity From 131 To 200

"THE BEDTIME Story" was told at the meeting of the Citizen's Advisory Council of the General Hospital held last night, when the members also got their first look at how the hospital will appear when the new proposed wing has been added.

Purpose of the new wing is primarily to relieve the present overcrowding of patients and to provide for expected community expansion by adding new beds. At the request of Jere Stoffiet, president of the board of trustees of the hospital, M. R. Kiefer, of the firm of architects and William Nixon, presented charts and explanations of the expansion plan.

The present bed capacity of the hospital is 131 beds. However, 50 of those beds are located in the "old" wing of the hospital where space and safety factors make them "unacceptable" by state hospital standards so that they must be replaced.

The rooms now providing beds in the old wing will be devoted to non-patient care such as relocated outpatient department, rooms for related health agencies and other hospital functions.

The new "bed story" will feature 20 new beds on the first floor. On the second floor 32 new beds will be added to the existing 55 beds. On the third floor, another 32 beds will be added to the existing 24.

The fourth floor, where there are now no beds, will add a total of 21 of which 16 will be private rooms and 5 rooms for intensive care. Kiefer explained that while present plans call for making the fourth floor rooms private rooms, they are all large enough so that they could be used as semi-private rooms.

The following chart demonstrated the bed story:

Total present capacity	131 beds
Unacceptable	50 beds
Total acceptable	81 beds
Others to be removed	2 beds
Total present remaining	79 beds
New construction	105 beds
Total new capacity	184 beds
Potential capacity	200 beds

The architects' drawing of the proposed new north wing was studied. Of brick, matching the present hospital, the new wing will be tied in architecturally by its windows trimmed with stone featured in the present structure.

The present pitched roof of the old north wing will be removed and a flat roof substitute to eliminate a fire hazard, Kiefer explained.

The first step in the expansion program will be to expand the parking lot across the street from the hospital to make up for the parking spaces which will be lost when the actual construction work is started on the new wing, he said.

Arlington W. Williams, chairman of the Expansion Fund Committee, presided at the meeting held in the dining room at the hospital.

He announced the appointment of Roy Mikels to head the resource committee whose task it will be to list potential leadership in the county.

Roger Dunning and Mrs. Claude Leister will head a speaker's bureau when the general campaign for funds gets under way next year.

The resort campaign conducted this Summer under the direction of Alexander Bensinger and Ann Wyckoff has moved off to a good start, it was announced, with the resorts responding in a heartening manner. A more complete report will be given at the end of the week.

Elks Award Scholarship To Student

MARVIN G. HAWK, Kunkletown RD, was awarded a $200 scholarship by the Northeastern Pennsylvania Elks Assn. at its recent meeting in Sayre.

Hawk is a senior in Penn State University and has been the recipient of the annual award for the past three years. The association has provided to date more than $17,000 in college scholarships to 70 students in the jurisdiction of the Assn.

In other action the group endorsed proposed changes in by-laws of the Pennsylvania State Elks Assn., which, if ratified by the lodges, would integrate the district groups with the state organization.

The chief change would be to replace the present district presidents with state vice presidents for each district. These individuals would be nominated and elected at the state convention and result in giving the district official recognition from the state Assn.

Membership Gain

A report on membership in the district showed a gain of 87 for the quarter. The report was given by Frank Krupsie of Scranton, who also said that plans for a mass initiation of candidates from all the lodges was slated for January.

Representatives were from lodges in East Stroudsbury, Bangor, Iehighton, Easton, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Lansford, Freeland, Hazleton, Northampton, Towanda and Honesdale.

The next quarterly session of the association will be held in East Stroudsburg Lodge 319, Sunday, Nov. 5. The session will open at 2 p. m.

School Board To Arrange For Buses

BANGOR — Bangor Borough School Board last night authorized its transportation committee to contract with private school bus operators to transport elementary and high school pupils next school term.

The arrangements resulted from an offer last month by one contractor to transport pupils to the new senior high school when it opens in January for $5 a bus per day.

It is understood one other operator bringing elementary pupils to Bangor would participate in a similar plan at $9 a bus per day; another was reported interested, and jointure owned buses could be used to transport kindergarten pupils.

The transportation committee is empowered to sign a contract which may be subject to revision in mid-year when the new senior high school opens.

The board instructed H. A. Berkheimer Associates to take necessary legal steps in collecting earned income tax from 30 businesses and individuals who have refused to make payment in the first full year of the wage-tax program.

Berkheimer also will be asked to provide a breakdown on earned income tax collection and submit a comprehensive report. This request is in addition to the required audit of records.

Democrats Pass Up Chance To Test Tie-Breaking Vote

HARRISBURG (AP) — Senate Democrats Monday night committed a tactical error that prevented them from testing the right of the lieutenant governor to cast a tie-breaking vote on legislation.

Within minutes after beginning the test, which Republicans protested, the Democratic leadership backed off.

It began when Lt. Gov. John Morgan Davis officially announced that a vote on a routine bill was 25 Democrats for and 25 Republicans against.

Then he announced he was going to break the tie and vote for the bill. It would have been the first time under the state's present constitution that a tie was broken by a lieutenant governor.

Republicans immediately protested that the move was unconstitutional and that they would contest it in the courts.

They argued that the constitution prohibits the lieutenant governor from voting on the final passage of legislation, although they conceded his right to vote on resolutions and other motions not relating to the enactment of laws.

A hurried conference of both party leaders followed at the speakers rostrum.

Republicans then moved to have the vote reconsidered and the bill returned to its original position. Strangely, there was no opposition from the Democrats.

Sen. Charles R. Weiner, the Democratic floor leader, brushed newsmen off with the comment that the bill involved just wasn't important enough.

But Sen. Robert Fleming, R-Allegheny, told reporters the move was to take Davis off the hook.

It developed that Davis had already announced the vote officially and therefore could not vote himself.

The opportunity to make the test, which could be very important later when the red-hot political issue of congressional reapportionment comes up, was lost, probably for the rest of the session.

Republicans prevented another tie on a bill immediately following—it, too, was a Philadelphia election measure—by having Fleming leave the room. The vote was 25-24.

Represents College At Conference

WILLIAM E. Gessner of East Stroudsburg State College is participating in the first Pennsylvania Science Writing Conference being held at Edinboro State College, Edinboro.

The conference, in session from July 31 through Aug. 11, is to prepare materials for a science program to be used in the elementary and junior high schools. Suggested procedures are aimed at providing science experiences for the student from the kindergarten through the junior high school.

One innovation will be the introduction of the metric system of measurement at the kindergarten level. Designated as the K-9 program, it is a part of the overall K-16 program being developed by five state-wide science committees composed of teachers, administrators, college educators and research scientists.

The project, being developed by a committee of 25 teachers and administrators from all sections of the state, is under the supervision of Dr. Albert F. Eiss, science education specialist of the Department of Public Instruction, assisted by Mrs. Mary M. Blatt, elementary science specialist with the department.

Gessner, serving on the committee from the East Stroudsburg area, is assistant professor of physical science. He is working with the curriculum group in undertaking an experimental program with the materials being produced by the conference.

Curb Fumes, U.S. Tells Auto Makers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Welfare Abraham Ribicoff served notice Monday the automobile industry must pledge by January to provide blowby control devices as standard equipment on 1964 cars or he will ask for legislation to require them.

Such devices reduce air pollution from exhaust fumes.

Ribicoff said he prefers that the effort to help solve the air pollution problem be carried out voluntarily by the manufacturers but that he will move in January to seek legislation if the industry has not announced a voluntary agreement.

Ribicoff explained he had been told the industry is in the process of testing blowby control devices, and that it will take until next April to finish this testing.

He said he was told the devices present engineering problems in that they would be used in diverse climates, at diverse altitudes, and under diverse conditions.

New Building Dedicated By Church

BANGOR — Solemn ceremonies were conducted at Trinity Lutheran Church here Sunday to dedicate the new $135,000 parish building adjoining the existing edifice.

Rev. Dr. Claude N. Schick, Philadelphia, secretary of the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, termed the building one of the best examples of modern-day sites where the Gospel can be preached, adding "a building is nothing without the dynamite of the Gospel within it."

Dr. Schick was introduced by Rev. William E. Dennis who participated in the dedicatory rites during the morning service. The Junior and Senior choirs, church deacons and Sunday school officials took part in the procession to the new building.

Plans for the new building were started in 1956 when a two-year fund raising drive was conducted within the parish. Construction started early this year.

The new two-story building has large windows on the east side where the main entrance is located. The first floor consists of a spacious auditorium and stage, new church office, a kitchen and lavatory facilities. There also are arrangements for a choir robing room and altar room.

The second floor consists of three large rooms and office quarters. Accordion-type curtains are provided to divide the Sunday school classrooms into six separate teaching units.

Agreement Reached By 2 Boroughs

BANGOR — An agreement between Bangor and Pen Argyl was approved last night by the Bangor Council. The agreement will allow plumbers, certified by both towns, to work on home sewage installations.

The proposal will add three plumbers to the list of those now qualified to make installations in Bangor and will open up a new list of plumbers to Pen Argyl residents.

Twenty applications for the position of sewage disposal plant supervisor are to be given study by the council and one selected at the next council meeting.

In other business council accepted the bid of William O. Phillips, Stroudsburg, to purchase an unused road scraper for $600 and a roller for $50.

W. High St. from S. First to S. Second Sts. will be resurfaced as well as S. Seventh St. from Walnut to Chestnut Sts., it was agreed. State funds from the liquid fuel tax will be applied to both projects. Bids for the work will be advertised.

Road Repairs

David O. Pritchard, borough engineer, was instructed to study the contracts with C. & T. Associates, builders of the sewage system, to determine what demands are imposed in replacing torn-up roads.

The decision followed an announcement by Councilman Joseph Powlette that Pennsylvania Ave., a concrete street, is to be repaired with blacktop. Council said it understood the streets were to be repaired with original material. Pritchard said he believes the contract applies only to state owned streets and not borough owned streets, but agreed to study the contract.

Samuel Hicks, safety chairman, said a study is underway to determine an effective way to lower the stop lights at S. Main and Messinger Sts. for better motorist vision.

He also reported that the traffic light at Eighth and Market Sts. was out of order and would be permanently repaired in three weeks.

Counselors Play Major Role At Barrett Stay-Home Camp

BARRETT — Watermelon hunts, swimming and archery contests have to be planned for the Barrett Branch YMCA stay-at-home camp, and it's the counselors who have planned them and other activities.

For the past four weeks, Jeff Fagen, Gary Schmerda and Pete Albert have been helping Robert Wilson with the older boys at camp. They, as well as Wright Gibson Jr. and Elwood Johnson Jr., taught songs to a restless group of youngsters prior to swimming, counted "buddies" at Seguine's Lake and found odd shoes when they returned.

Christa Caldwell and Barbara Siglin gave their time to the girls' camp under the direction of Mrs. Joyce Wilson and Mrs. Iva Kochera.

Arts and crafts were taught to the youngsters at camp. Every minute from 9:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. they were busy at a planned activity. Robert E. Wilson Jr., Paul Hawk and Mary Ann Geppert filled in as substitute counselors.

The camp, set up as an emergency measure because of the lack of a supervised playground this summer, offered tailor-made fun for each age-ground and taught useful skills.

All of the junior counselors donated their services for the five-week period. In recognition of this, the local Rotary Club will entertain all of them at their dinner meeting at the Pocono Top Hat Restaurant Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson have expressed their thanks to all the counselors who worked to make the camp a success.

No Backing Down

Russia's spectacular feat of orbiting a man around the earth 17 times and bringing him back safely must be regarded as another propaganda success for Communism in the cold battle of nerves.

Regardless of the extent of scientific knowledge which may accrue to the Soviet Union as a result of the space flight, the mere fact that the Communists are claiming to have put a five-ton manned satellite into orbit has given them a new advantage in the ever-mounting struggle for control of the world.

One immediate result appears to have been well timed by Soviet Premier Khrushchev, because Sunday's successful space flight seems to reinforce his demands in the dispute with the West over the fate of Berlin.

Already we have heard rumblings to the effect that Russia's feat gives that country the means by which it can terrorize helpless nations around the world by sending up huge satellites laden with nuclear weapons that could be dropped at designated spots at will.

Such a threat might cause some of the nations of the West, and no doubt a certain element in this country, to press for a softer, more compromising stand in the Berlin crisis.

Any easing of the firm position the forces of freedom have taken against Russia's demands in Berlin would, of course, jolt our hopes for retaining what rights we now hold in the German capital and might even seal our own doom as a leader of the forces opposed to Communism.

It is obvious, therefore, that we cannot back down in the face of increasing Red pressures, nor can we allow our allies within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to yield one inch.

We must not be swerved from our stated determination to remain in Berlin even if it means a shooting war that neither the East nor the West wants.

We should continue to let the world know we are willing to negotiate any points in dispute, but we dare not retreat from our determined stand in Berlin. The alternative to standing up for our rights is capitulation to the enemy, if not immediately, surely in the not-too-distant future.

No Joke

The filing of police charges against a youngster who admits a school prank sounds like stern medicine. But when the prank is an anonymous phone call about a "bomb" planted in the school, and when so many hundred of lives are at stake, the action must be firm.

For school authorities have no quick way of distinguishing between the prankster and the genuine crackpot. They have take each threat deadly seriously.

Four times recently such threats have been received at Will Rogers. Each has proved a hoax. What a tragic responsibility would rest on a hoaxer's shoulders if school officials tired of the game of "Wolf!" and did nothing the very time the danger was real.

It is to guard against such a disaster that it must be publicly demonstrated that such hoaxing is no joke. There must be no persecution, but there must be prosecution.

—Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune

George Sokolsky Says . . .

The Top-Off

As early as the Potsdam Conference (July 17, 1945) Stalin made it clear that Soviet Russia would oppose the participation of China in European and world affairs, despite the fact that China had been at war with Japan since September 1931.

Had China not kept Japan occupied, it is likely that the Japanese, using Manchuria as a base, would have conquered Mongolia and parts of Siberia as far as Lake Baikal.

As a matter of fact, Japan had been active in that region since 1917 and it was only American intervention that saved both Russian and Chinese territory. Nevertheless, Soviet Russia never went into the Far Eastern War until it was over and then came in for the spoils.

So on July 17, 1945, when Stalin, Churchill and Truman were meeting at Potsdam to discuss matters, the following colloquy occurred:

"Stalin: . . . I would like an explanation of the reason for China's participation in European affairs.

"Truman: China is one of the five members of the Security Council.

"Stalin: The decision taken at Crimea provided for quarterly conferences of the foreign secretaries. Does President Truman's suggestion supersede the Crimea proposal?

Truman: The Crimea proposal was temporary. . . .

"Churchill . . . I think it a needless complication to bring China in. When it comes to drawing up the peace, all countries must come in. The preliminary work cannot be done by telegram. I am content that China should be admitted to drawing up the general provisions for peace but not for the day to day work. China is far from Europe and has not contributed to the European war. Do you really wish to discuss the administration of Germany with the Chinese delegation?"

So, China was pushed out of the meetings where it would have been possible for China to protect herself and her interests. In fact, Winston Churchill aided the Russians in this matter. He said:

"Until the Japanese war is over I see great difficulty in China's having a voice in the trying problems of Europe. I see no advantage in introducing China with the European settlement. They have not fought in Europe.

"It is possible that while the Council is sitting, the war with Japan will end. Then China can and should come into the World Peace Conference. I do not see that China could help us in settling the question of the Reich."

The next day, July 18, 1945, the China question was again raised by Russia.

"Mr. Molotov again raised the question of China but said that if the Council was to deal with other than exclusively European affairs the objections to China's participation would drop."

'Mr. Byrnes suggested that the Council be composed of five powers but that participation of China be limited to problems concerning the Far East or problems of world wide significance. . . . The other reason for including China was that China is one of the permanent members of the Security Council."

This attitude of the Russians persisted throughout the Conference, despite the fact that Soviet Russia did not participate in the Far Eastern War until it was practically over.

The Russians took the same position as regards France, namely, that France should have no voice in the settlement of European affairs, because France had not participated in the armistice.

It was clearly the Russian program first to reduce the discussion to among Three Powers, the United States, Soviet Russia, and Great Britain. Undoubtedly it was the Russian plan to squeeze out Great Britain as well.

Truman was told at the July 18 luncheon that Japan had been ready to make peace. The following is significant:

"I (Churchill) imparted to the President the disclosure about the offer from the Mikado, made to me by Marshal Stalin the night before; and I told him he was quite free to talk it over with the Marshal, as I had informed him at the Marshal's expressed desire . . .

Here I explained that Marshal Stalin had not wished to transmit this information direct to him for fear he might think the Russians were trying to influence him towards peace . . . I dwelt upon the tremendous cost in American life and, to a smaller extent, in British life which would be involved in forcing 'unconditional surrender' upon the Japanese."

It is startling to read today that American blood was spilled profusely after Japan had sought peace and that the atom bomb was hurled at Hiroshima after that.

The Pennsylvania Story

Praises Senate

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Do folks at home know what they want—or don't they? (Part Two)

It would be well to note perhaps that this column is not basically concerned over the issue at the moment of whether there should or should not be county health departments; whether the county health program is or is not the best program. We are concerned however with the adament attitude of the county health department devotees.

For example, in vibrantly and strongly supporting legislation referred to yesterday that would eliminate the right of county residents to do away with a county health department once they had created it — legislation the Senate knocked down to defeat last week — the Pennsylvania Health Council proved most vocal via the mimeographed "news release" handout route.

The council by the way, insofar as disinterested observers on Capital Hill are concerned, is simply another lobby organization, a non-governmental agency made up of lay and professional people interested in furthering goals they deem "best for the people." (They see red at such an unglorified description in the public prints!)

On the "no-ripper" legislation vibrantly approved by the council and defeated by the Senate, the council's stand was summed up this way in support of its contention that the people should not have the right to vote on whether a county health department should be continued:

"When you have a situation in which a vital public service tries to exist in an atmosphere of worry and doubt it makes it difficult, even impossible to recruit and hold highly trained professional and scientific personnel, such as public health workers."

The answer seemingly would be of: (a) while it would be "delightful" from the security standpoint not to have to worry about continuity of employment, the hazards seemingly would be no greater than in other professional fields where services can be terminated for a host of reasons, (b) if the job they are doing in the county health department is so devastatingly great, why would there by "worry and doubt" over continuity? (even we most ignorant peons like to keep a good thing once we have it.)

The Health Council also insists:

"These professional people obviously are hesitant to join an organization which periodically is thrown into political controversy."

If "political controversy" throws out a county health department then most assuredly it would be just as large a factor in "throwing it in" in the first place!

But aside from all this, political controversy, per se, long has been conceded to be the governing factor of democratic form of government — or has the democratic form been eliminated somewhere along the line of which this column is not aware?

But perhaps one of the council "clinchers' in arguing for the no - citizen - voice concept is contained in this comment:

"And because of this controversy and threats to continuity, it is impossible to develop the sound long - range health programs which are so badly needed?"

Only one comment seemingly need be offered on this point. Insofar as being "so badly needed" is concerned — says who? Does the council mean to imply that local folks don't know what they want; what is good for them — who shall be president?

Do the folks at home know what they want — or don't they? Usurption of individual rights has gone far enough as it is — Pennsylvanias Senate seemingly deserves a good, "healthy" pat on the back for standing firm on so basic an issue!

The Allen-Scott Report

Oppose Foreign Aid

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — President Kennedy is kidding himself if he thinks the House Appropriations Subcommittee handling his embattled foreign aid bill will give him anywhere near the $8.8 billion he is seeking.

A private poll shows only three of the 13 subcommitteemen siding with him.

The five Republicans want to heavily cut the $4.8 billion the President is asking for economic and military aid for the current fiscal year, and to completely eliminate the five - year $4 billion authority to grant long-term economic development loans.

On the latter, five of the eight Democratic committeemen feel pretty much the same way. Several are willing to give the President some lending authority, but only under tight congressional control.

All five see eye - to - eye with the GOP on slashing the $4.8 billion request.

Heading this dissident Democratic group is Rep. Otto Passman, La., chairman, long a militant battler against large-scale foreign aid spending.

Passman is being assiduously wooed by the President, who has personally talked to him several times. Passman has been quoted in some press reports as being favorably swayed by the President's pleas and the grim world situation, particularly the war-threatening Berlin crisis.

But when a White House assistant boasted of that to a friendly member of Passman's subcommittee, he wouldn't buy it.

"I just left him a half hour ago," said the committeeman, "and that wasn't the way he was talking at our committee meeting. You're letting yourself in for a painful letdown if you're counting on Passman going with you. He definitely is not. He is absolutely opposed to the five-year lending authority, and if he has his way, he will cut at least $1 billion from the $4.8 billion for this year."

Not The K.O. Punch — But whatever Passman's subcommittee does, that's only the first round. It's a crucial one, but far from conclusive.

The President will have other chances to fight for his $8.8 billion bill.

The first will be in the full 50-member House Appropriations Committee — 30 Democrats; 20 Republicans. The outlook there is conjectural. The full committee rarely overturns recommendations of its subcommittee.

But that has happened, and the President is doing his utmost to win over the other committeemen for his giant foreign aid program.

As of now, he doesn't have the votes, particularly on the five-year lending authority. The President does have a majority in the full Committee against riddling this year's $4.8 billion budget.

That will be cut, but not as much as Passman and his bipartisan backers would like.

After the full committee acts, the issue then goes to the House. That's where the President is concentrating his major wooing and where his best hopes are. Speaker Sam Rayburn and Democratic Floor Leader John McCormack, Mass., are confident they can rally enough votes to give the President most of what he wants — regardless of what the Appropriations Committee does.

The assurance is what he is hopefully counting on.

One thing is certain: If he doesn't win in the House, then his prospects in the Senate will be seriously hurt.

From 1946 to July 1 of this year, U.S. foreign aid expenditures totaled $84.09 billion, of which $56.985 billion was for economic aid, and $27.105 billion military.

European countries were the largest beneficiaries — $43.135 billion — $28.304 billion economic, $14.83 billion military. The Far East was second with $18.956 billion — $12.181 billion economic, $6.775 billion military. The Near East and South Asia were third with a total of $13.392 billion — $8.982 billion economic, $4.41 billion military.

Other beneficiary regions are in the following order:

Latin America $4.447 billion — $4.057 billion economic, $389 million military. South Asia $3.89 billion — $3.888 billion economic, $1.5 million military. Africa $822.1 million — $764 million economic, $57 million military. So - called "nonregional" $3.336 billion — $2.693 billion economic, $642 million military.

Fibroid Tumor

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.

That enlarging womb explained why she couldnt have babies!

Swirling gether with tough connecting fibers to weave a fibroid tumor in the womb wall. Chances are 50 - 50 that you'll wind up with one of these non - cancerous fibroids before your change of life.

Even though female hormones spin fibers into fibroids, they nip feminine function in the bud. Many fibroid - sufferers want babies but can't seem to have any.

Fibroids often stretch the womb lining. From this larger surface comes a heavier menstrual flow and thick, whitish discharge. Unceasing pressure against the womb linings brings on continual bleeding from internal bed sores.

Tumor Pressure

Heavy tumors may lean against the bladder and keep you running to the bathroom. Or they press on a nerve, giving you a backache and sciatica.

Even though fibroids poke through the womb lining or bulge beyond its outer coat, the muscular layer nourishes each through a junior-sized umbilical cord. If this stalk twists, the fibroid strangles and you double up with shock - like pain.

Outside the womb, the stem may break off, leaving the fibroid free to wander through the abdomen.

Large fibroids sometimes destroy millions of red blood cells. The tumor reddens, but you pale with anemia.

Some fibroids soften into fluid - filled cysts, while others harden into stony lumps of calcium.

After the change of life, many fibroids fade away. A few become dangerous.

Small fibroids need no treatment unless they block the birth passage.

Surgical Measures

X - rays can shrink fibroids, but they also shrink nearby ovaries, producing a sudden change of life. Usually the surgeon prefers to whisk out both fibroid and womb—which might later become cancerous.

Womb removal isn't the answer for younger women who still want babies. For them, the surgeon reserves a delicate operation which removes only the tumor.

This simple surgery can trigger a population explosion in many a childless household.

Cares Not For Stop Signs

Dear Editor:

The lollipop story in your Mondays paper smacks of so much sanctimony that it requires some comments.

Now, the stop sign, according to the present lore, is so untouchable that everyone, especially the certain kind of policemen will crucify me for speaking out against its holiness. Yet that sign is neither holy, nor omniscient, nor all powerful.

All it is —an inanimate, sometimes badly, or even hardly visible painted disc just standing there.

By so standing, it does not guide, or avert, if a driver, awe-stricken by the idol, truly, and really stops to worship it for one, two, five, or any number of seconds, and then plows into a child, or another car.

I do remember that a law is a law, and you have to obey the law. However, If someone were tearing upon you, and you saw you would be smashed if you stopped at the stop sign just ahead, would you obey and die, or would you rather disobey and live — even if thereafter dragged before a court for going through a stop sign.

Has it ever occurred to you that after not a short study the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania itself has put the holiness of the stop sign in a kind of an umbra? It has introduced a "yield right of way" sign.

Such sign relegates cerebral action to the God's creature, who alone can exercise judgment, apprise a situation, decide upon the moment and the kind of action to take, and take it. The man's creature, the stop sign, cannot, never could, nor ever will be able to. If the God's creature is incapable of any cerebral action, no number of stop signs will ever give him any.

Maybe, the ones who did not get any lollipops deserved them more than the unthinking, reflex-activated robots who got them.

On the second thought again, considering the utter worthlessness of lollipops for human consumption — especially in this hot weather — maybe it serves the robots right.

Responsibility Is The Key To Women's Promotion

By Roberta Fleming Roesch

"Women who really want to get ahead in business should insist upon more responsibility," says E. A. Butler, president of E. A. Butler Associates, Inc., an organization that counsels industry on management and personnel and evaluates and places job-seekers.

According to Butler, business executives are more or less in the habit of promoting men rather than women to key positions simply because men are often considered more permanent than women. So many of the latter look upon a job merely as a way to pass the time until a husband comes along.

Force Their Hands

Consequently, Butler advises women who want to get ahead and be more than routine secretaries to insist that they be given a chance to show all their abilities.

"It can be done, too." Butler told me with conviction. "A girl may still retain the title of secretary for a long while, even after she has a lot more responsibility, because most successful executives have to have a good strong girl on whom they can depend for assuming part of their work load. But an ambitious girl's responsibility and salary can go way beyond that of a straight secretary's status.

An Example

"Just to give you an example, I've known girls who topped the $10,000 mark once they showed their bosses what they could do and asked for more responsibility," Butler added.

He then went on to tell me the story of a girl who was employed in a big city real estate office for several years. Finally, the girl decided she wanted to progress just as much as some of the men in the firm were progressing.

She analyzed the possibilities and then made up her mind that she was capable of running one of the branch offices for the firm.

No one, of course, ever thought of asking the girl if she wanted to do such a thing. But this particular girl made it her business to ask for the job herself and insist that she be used in a more responsible capacity if she stayed with the firm.

Today she runs a branch office—most successfully.

Another Quality

"She succeeded in business herself because she had a sincere interest in both the success of the business and the success of the man who ran the firm," explained Butler. "That's another quality women who want to get ahead should have.

She Thought About Marriage More Than About Her Work

"When women have these qualities I've mentioned, their value in business is just as concrete as a man's, if they make the most of what they have. And they can make the most of what they have by working a little harder and producing a little more than other employes in the firm."

Coupon Prize Awarded Area Legion Aux.

Newfoundland — The unit of Phillips-Zacharias Phillips Post 859, American Legion, was awarded a cash prize at the State Convention in Erie recently, having collected the most premium associate coupons during the past year.

Mrs. Robert Rochfort, of Sterling, who attended the convention as State Pan-Americanism Chairman and president of the local auxiliary, accepted the award for the unit. She noted that much of the credit for securing the coupons goes to the Girl Scouts of Laurel Troop One, who make it a special project each year to collect the coupons for the auxiliary.

The coupons are turned into cash toward the president's project, each year, Mrs. Rochfort reported. The local unit participated in securing a kiln for Wilkes-Barre Veterans Hospital for the making of pottery handwork. A total of $10,000 was realized from the coupons this year, and will be divided among 13 veterans hospitals.

Mrs. Rochfort spoke at the president's dinner at the convention.

Cantaloupe Tricks Work Every Summer

Some cantaloupe tricks we use year after year. They never wear out their welcome, we suspect, because they're "naturals." Here are our top favorites.

Scored Cantaloupe

Cut cantaloupes into quarters lengthwise; remove seeds. Using a sharp-medium-sized kitchen knife with a narrow blade, "score" the melon: Make three lengthwise cuts down each quarter right through the flesh; loosen flesh by inserting knife along and under each side of the cantaloupe quarters to the center. Make cross cuts ¾ to 1 inch apart so there will be mouth-size pieces of the cantaloupe; leave in place. Impale large blueberries (the big cultivated ones are best here) on wooded food picks and insert a berry-laden pick in each cut. We use exactly four berries for each pick, and if there are children in the house they adore doing this counting and inserting. Offer as before-meal-tidbits with cool drinks in the living room or outdoors, or serve in regular fashion as appetizer or dessert around the dining table or on a buffet. No eating utensils needed. Picks are picked up and berries and cantaloupe popped willingly into mouths. For quick plain service, omit berries-on-picks.

Lazygirl's Stuffed Cantaloupe

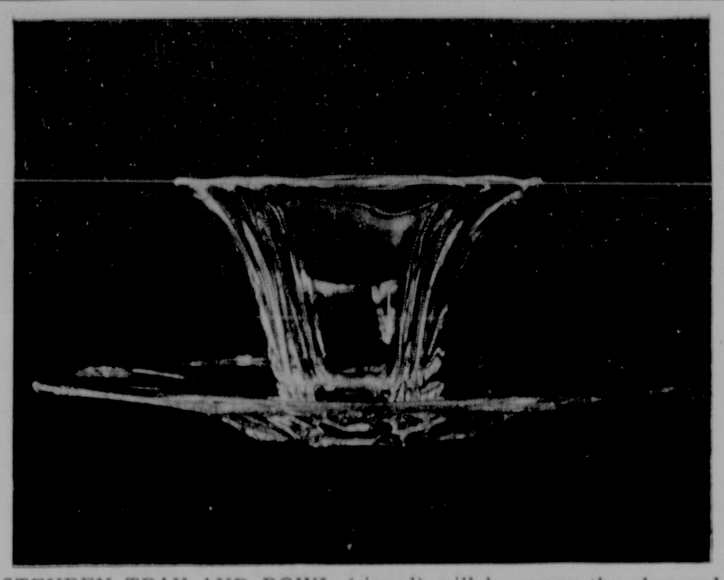
Cut cantaloupes in half lengthwise; remove seeds. Cut a thin slice from bottom of each half, if necessary, to have stand straight. Score cantaloupe flesh lengthwise and loosen from rind; score crosswise to make mouthsize pieces. Mix the pieces helter-skelter. Add any other fresh fruit you like choosing some for contrasting color: Blueberries, strawberries, blackberries, pitted sweet cherries, diced pineapple, sliced peaches or apricots.

Sprinkle fruit with sugar to taste and mix gently right in the individual cantaloupe "bowls." For a party dessert you might like to add a little spirit along with the extra fruit; use orange-flavored liqueur, kirsch (clear cherry brandy) or white wine.

Cantaloupe Plus

The Italian cuisine has a wonderful way of coupling cantaloupe with the delicattly cured Italian-style ham called prosciutto. You can arrange this combination a couple of ways. Roll the thin slices of ham and place on cantaloupe quarters; or drape the slices of ham over the melon. Leave the rind on the cantaloupe or remove it. Serve this as a first course with luncheon-size forks and knives.

To extend this idea into an arranged chef's salad as a main course for lunch or supper, place salad greens on a big platter. Add crescents of pared cantaloupe, long thin strips of chicken, baked ham, cooked smoked tongue and Swiss cheese. Center with a bouquet of watercress. Serve with mayonnaise, sour-cream dressing or French dressing. Delightful! Seeded rolls and sweet butter will make a delicious accompaniment.



STEUBEN TRAY AND BOWL (signed) will be among the glass and crystal to be shown at the Pocono Mountains Antique Show. These pieces, purchased from a private home in Maryland, are of crystal and polished pontils. The points are rounded.

American Glass Collections To Star At Pocono Antiques Show This Week

For veteran collectors of glass and for people who read about American glass for the first time in the current picture story, "Dictionary of American Glass," the Pocono Mountains Antiques Show which opens Wednesday at the college gymnasium promises much of interest.

Practically all of the pieces pictured in the article will be on display by the various dealers. Miss Iris Higgins, director of the show, has also volunteered to provide information about the pieces to anyone wishing to consult her at the show.

Probably the rarest pieces to be displayed will be two Morgan Vases, usually found only in museums. There will also be a Rainbow Satin lamp valued at $1,500.

In addition, there will be three cabinets of "art" glass: Satin peachblow, Burmese, holly amber, amberina, Kewbels glass, and both New England and Wheeling glass.

There will also be an almost complete collection of china: Gaudy Dutch, Gaudy Welsh, Adams rose, Limoges, Royal Worcester, Old Derby, Royal Crown Derby Ironstone, Staffordshire, as well as Dresden and French figurines.

Furniture will range from the early primitive, and will include an Early American grandfather's clock.

Coins, ironware, ivory miniature and portraits, buttons, cards; jewelry, prints both framed and unframed, old books, silverware in flatware and sets, dolls and iron toys, old guns, all will be among the specialties displayed at the show.

Sponsored by the Aux. of the General Hospital, the Antiques Show will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week from 1 to 10 p. m.

Proceeds will be used for the expansion building program for the hospital.

Boyhood Of Dr. Buzzard In Stroudsburg Recorded In 'Album' Of Area Native

Album of a Pennsylvanian: Josiah Floyd Buzzard, M.D. Edited by J. Horace Strunk. Pennsylvania Album Series, 1961 $5.

By BOBBY WESTBROOK

The lure of rummaging at will through somebody else's desk drawers: reading his diary, looking through the family album, the scrapbook of clippings, reading excerpts from letters, is one which the honorable may resist but which they admit is temptation.

To do so with man's approval and blessing is something else again, and that is exactly the feeling which a reader might have in reading "Album of a Pennsylvanian".

The Pennsylvanian is Dr. J. Floyd Buzzard, a native of Monroe County, now Emeritus Chief of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Department at Mercy Hospital in Altoona, and consultant at the Veterans Administration Hospital there. The book is edited by J. Horace Strunk, former executive secretary of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce.

The book itself is album-sized with a white cover bearing a picture of Dr. Buzzard. It is replete with pictures some in color, photostats of clippings, copies of speeches, testimonials from his friends and aquaintances, a history of his life compiled by Strunk and the doctor's own running commentary on his memories of those days.

As Dr. Buzzard says in his own preface, the book is intended for his family and friends. "It gives me a chance to bring all of us together for an hour or so of hearty reminiscences," he says.

For his Monroe County family and friends the primary interest of the book may be in its early section where he describes his boyhood in Stroudsburg — and many of them may find themselves listed in these pages.

They begin with the full color photographs of the Hamilton Square Church and its altar, for which the land was contributed by an ancestor Philip Bossert, and of the Delaware Water Gap and Cherry Valley. There are pictures of his parents, Edward and Alice Buzzard, his grandparents and other ancestors, including his grandfather Josiah Buzzard, who was a blacksmith on Ann St., in Stroudsburg.

There is a picture, complete with Floyd in a baby carriage, of their home at 103 Broad St., Stroudsburg, the second house to be built in the Barry Development (now South Stroudsburg).

There are stories and pictures of his days as caddy at the Stroudsburg Highland Country Club for Golfing and at Buckwood Inn, now Shawnee, and of the men he caddied for. There are pictures of his teachers in the Stroudsburg schools, and copies of his commencement programs from grammar school and high school.

There are also snapshots of former classmates, and tales of outings at Eilenbergers Landing, Saylors Lake, swimming at Lanfer's Rock and the baseball and ice hockey games. There are also references to his childhood courtship of Edith Walton, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Walton of Stroudsburg, who later became his wife.

The book goes on to describe his college days at Franklin and Marshall College and the Medical School of the University of Pennsylvania. There is a detailed section on the early days of his practice in Cassandra, a coal-mining town, and his second office in Portage, where to took his bride. It is complete with anecdotes from former patients, and descriptions of kitchen-table operations of his early practice.

Mixed in with pictures and stories of his children and his practice are accounts of his extracurricular enthusiasms: hunting, fishing and golf, and his companions in those adventures.

In this "Album of a Pennsylvanian", the reader ends with an impression that this is a printed version of the television show, between hard covers, complete with pictures and testimonials, and might bear the sub-title "This is Your Life — Dr. Buzzard".

Just Between Us——

By Bobby Westbrook

Anytime I seem to be walking two feet off the ground you can bet that I hit the mailbox jackpot — a letter from both kids the same day. Which is why yesterday you all looked much peppier than usual and the news seemed to be all good.

It was fun poking through Dr. Buzzard's personal papers in his "Album" and coming up with some pictures of you I'll bet you'd forgotten. There was the snowy picture of Roy and Helen Hauser when she was still Helen Flagler, standing in front of a board fence. There was Lorraine Wyckoff and Lila Smith with flowers for their high school graduation, and Lorraine and Margaret Mutchler, the L'Amoreaux girls and Mildred LeBar in his wedding photo.

Seems to be something of everything in that book: including the Worthington's introducing the first rubber-centered golf ball, replacing the old gutta percha ball and Philadelphia's Mayor Mackey who brought a new innovation a "golf bag" to carrk "the sticks" in.

Yesterday was pleasant also knowing that the Drs. Claus and Charlotte Jordan are home and had a wonderful time on their trip. Seemed exciting to be getting the first glimpse of how the hospital will look when the new wing is built.

The only thing good news doesn't seem to do for me is make me more efficient. I find myself standing motionless, dust cloth suspended, smiling vaguely at nothing. Or staring at the ribbon of the typewriter as if expecting it to write the words all by itself.

Give me a good healthy worry and I can scrub floors like mad and bat out copy by the yard, trying not to think at all. Which you'll probably think doesn't take all that effort!

Yanks 3 In Front After Topping LA

NEW YORK (AP) — A surprise bunt by slugger Roger Maris and a tie-breaking home run by Yogi Berra backed the six-hit pitching of Bud Daley Monday night as the New York Yankees came from behind for a 4-1 victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

It was the Yanks' fifth straight success and produced a three-game bulge — their largest lead of the season — over idle Detroit in the American League race. It also marked the return to action of Yankee Manager Ralph Houk, who had been serving out a five-day suspension for a run-in with Umpire Ed Hurley.

Berra's homer, a belt into the lower right field seats on a 3-2 pitch, led off the sixth inning and beat the Angels' top winner, Ken McBride (9-8). It was Yogi's 14th home run of the season and No. 332 for his career, breaking a tie with Hall of Famer Hank Greenberg for 14th place on the all-time list.

The Yankees had tied it 1-all in the third when Bobby Richardson scored on Maris' two-out bunt down the third base line. Richardson had doubled and then moved to third on an infield out.

Daley, (9-15), a southpaw who had lost five in a row, lost a shutout in the second inning. The Angels, now 0-6 at Yankee Stadium, scored on a walk, a single by Joe Koppe and an infield hit by Rocky Bridges.

Left 25 Percent To Education

CORNELIA, Ga. (AP)—Baseball great Ty Cobb left 25 per cent of his estate to the educational fund he established eight years ago to aid needy students in completing their education.

Cobb's will, probated Monday in Habersham County Court of Ordinary, provided that the remaining 75 per cent be left in trust for his children and grandchildren.

No estimate of the estate's value was given. He was reported several times a millionaire.

The will, signed May 22, authorized his daughter Shirley Cobb Beckworth, to dispose of Cobb's trophies, household furnishings and other personal effects.

Cobb entered an Atlanta hospital June 5 for treatment of diabetes, cancer and heart disease. He died July 17.

The Ty Cobb Educational Fund provides help "for the manual arts school, technological, professional or college education of qualified boys and girls who otherwise would be unable to secure such education." The Trust Co. of Georgia, trustee of the fund, said more than 100 students have already been awarded scholarships from the fund.

Cobb, who starred with the Detroit Tigers and Philadelphia Athletics for 24 seasons, was known to have put part of his major league salary into blue-chip stocks and to have become a millionaire.

His baseball salary ranged from $1,800 to $40,000 a year.

He established the Cobb Memorial Hospital in his hometown of Royston in 1950 in the memory of his parents and set up a $100,000 endowment fund for the care of indigent patients.

The 75 per cent of his estate reserved for Cobb's descendants will be divided among his children, James Cobb, Mrs. Thomas D. McLaren and Mrs. Beckworth, all of California, and the children of two sons who died, Herschel and Tyrus Cobb Jr.

Cobb's first wife, Mrs. Charlie Marion Lombard, was at his bedside when he died. They were divorced in 1947 after 39 years of marriage.

Cobb married Frances Case of Buffalo, N. Y., two years later, and they were divorced.

Pirates Sign HS Flash

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates Monday announced the signing of Leonard R. Merullo Jr., 18, a former high school star shortstop from Reading, Mass.

Merullo is the son of the former Chicago Cubs shortstop. He recently completed his freshman year at Holy Cross University, where he played baseball and football.

The youth, who bats left-handed and throws right-handed, is a six-footer and weighs 185 pounds. The Bucs said he was signed "in competition with many other major league clubs" but did not reveal how much money they paid him to sign.

Merullo was signed to a 1962 contract with the Batavia (N.Y.) Club of the Class D New York-Pennsylvania League.

Lombardi Inks 5-Yr. Contract

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — A new five-year contract with an undisclosed pay increase for General Manager and Coach Vince Lombardi was announced Monday by the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League.

Club President Dominic Olejniczak said in making the announcement at a news conference that Lombardi's original five-year contract was torn up with three seasons remaining.

Lombardi was lured to the Packers from the New York Giants, where he served as backfield coach, in 1959. Taking over a team which finished with a 1-10-1 record in 1958, Lombardi directed the Packers to a 7-5 mark in his first season and was voted the NFL "coach of the year."

Briton Puts Shot 64 Ft.

MANSFIELD, England (AP) — Arthur Rowe, 26, a British blacksmith, Monday bettered his own European shot put record with a heave of 64 feet, 2 inches.

That throw beat the record he set at London's White City Stadium on Saturday by 4¾ inches.

Rowe is now only 20 inches short of the listed world mark of 65-10 held by Americas' Bill Nieder.

Shawnee Pro Nabs A. Open

HOWARD Everitt, Shawnee Country Club pro, won the Anthracite Open at the Valley Country Club in Hazleton yesterday.

He came in with a 70, which was only good enough to tie Dominic Foscone. In a sudden-death playoff, Everitt parred the extra hole and Foscone bogeyed to give the Shawnee professional the win.

Art Wall Jr., back on the links after missing the Eastern Open because of illness, came in with a 79 on the tricky course.

Everitt's team, which tied with Foscone's team with 64, was comprised of Everitt, John Chimienti, Shawnee; Don Chiampi, Shawnee; and Ralph Frish, Valley Country Club.

Everitt holed out with five birds to his credit, and Chimenti carded three one-under-pars.

"The greens were fast and tricky," said Chimienti after the tournament, "which Wall said accounted for his high score. He four-putted the 10th hole."

Orioles Stop KC Rally To Win, 5-4

BALTIMORE (AP) — Relief pitcher Billy Hoeft squelched a budding Kansas City rally in the ninth inning Monday night and preserved a 5-4 victory for the Baltimore rioles over the last-place Athletics.

Summoned to the mound with two on and one out, Hoeft struck out Norm Siebern and induced pinch-hitter Ossie Virgil to hit into a game-ending force play.

Trailing 5-1 after seven innings, the Athletics scored three runs in the eighth off Jack Fisher, the second Oriole pitcher. A walk, a bunt single by Jerry Lumpe and a double by Wayne Causey scored one. Two more came across on infield outs.

The winning pitcher was Chuck Estrada (9-6), who benefitted from homers by Jackie Brandt and Jim Gentile before Fisher replaced him with the bases loaded and one out in the seventh.

Brandt knocked in three runs with a fifth inning single and a two-run homer, his ninth, in the seventh inning. Gentile hit his 31st homer, a club record, in the second.

Art Ditmar (2-7), the losing pitcher, gave up the first three Oriole runs. Ed Rakow yielded the homer to Brandt.

Sees More Wide Open Football

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Coach Frank Bridgers of Baylor predicted Monday that college football will be more wide open than ever this fall.

The defense has made much more progress than the offense in the past 10 years, he told sports writers at an interview during the Texas Coaching School, where he is lecturing, and the offense must catch up.

"There will be more spreads and wide stuff, more passing and more sprint out and roll out passes," he said. At least Baylor will be continuing its wide open play in which it passes more than half as much as it runs, he added.

He would not predict that Baylo would break the longest jinx that has hung over a member of the Southwest Conference—it has been 37 years since the Bears won the championship — but he said Baylor would be stronger than last year on offense.

Bridgers is doubtful that it will do better defensively, however, pointing to the fact that Baylor is not deep enough in the line.

There are six schools that will be in the title race, he said, and he listed them as Texas, Arkansas, Rice, Baylor, Texas A&M and Texas Christian, and he added that "Southern Methodist and Texas Tech are likely to figure in the thing by knocking over the top-rated outfits."

"Baylor has two of the finest quarterbacks in college football in Ronnie Stanley and Bobby Ply," he said. "Stanley completed more passes in his sophomore and junior years than Don Meredith, Southern Methodist's great passer, but he may be my second-team quarterback."

Bridgers said Baylor emphasizes passing because he thinks it is necessary to have a good throwing game to make the offense click and also it makes more interesting football and is more attractive to the players.

"I have had to run my boys off the field because they like passing so much. When you have something that makes a boy want to work overtime on his own it must be valuable," he said.

Brabham Wins In Cooper Climax

BRAND'S HATCH, England (AP) — World champion Jack Brabham, driving the Cooper Climax in which he won the Grand Prix title last year, captured the 201.4 miles (322.5 kilometers) Intercontinental Race at Brand's Hatch Monday.

The Australian, who was never challented from the 24th lap, was timed in 2 hours, 10 minutes, 53.6 seconds — an average speed of 92.32 miles per hour for the 76-lap race.

Jim Clark (Lotus), Britain, was second and Graham Hill (BRM), Britain, was third.

Baker Wins 1st Press Tourney At Tamiment

DICK BAKER, of WCOJ radio in Coatesville, survived a match of cards to win the First Annual Pennsylvania Press, Radio and TV Golf Championship at Tamiment Monday.

Baker and Joe Chicco, of WDAU-TV, Scranton, both had 81's on the 7100-yard course, but the scorecards were compared to break the tie, and Baker had a four on the first hole while Chicco took a bogey five.

Baker also won the radio division of the tournament and Chicco took the TV bracket.

Curt Prins, Daily Record sports editor, captured the press division with an 84, and was fourth in the over-all standings. Prins also took low net honors in the class A handicap division and won both the driving and closet to the pin contests.

Prins' drive of 301 yards on the 18th hole edged Bill Foley of the Scranton Tribune by inches and Prins' tee shot on the second hole, a par three, landed seven feet, five inches from the cup to give him the accuracy title.

Second place in the press division went to Joseph P. Ujobai, State Representative from Chester Co. and managing editor and general manager of the Phoenixville Daily Republican.

Ujobai had 85 and was also the runner-up for the class A net title.

The tournament, sponsored by the Pocono Record, drew 51 entries with Pen Brown of WSEE-TV, Erie, traveling the farthest distance.

MARK WILE, hurling his last Little League game, threw a no-hitter to lead Counterman's to the title in the East Stroudsburg Little League last night.

Wile fashioned the 5-0 win against R. C. Cramers. There were only two hits in the game, but the druggers managed to come up with five runs.

Lee pitched well for Cramers, walking five, striking out 10, and allowing two safeties, but it couldn't match Wile's blaze of glory effort.

Wile walked five and struck out 13 on his way to a season record of 7-3. "I threw the fastball," Wile said after the game. The manager of the team said he didn't believe in having the boys throw a curve, but Wile's fast one has a natural break on it.

Notre Dame To Feature Sophs In '61

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Notre Dame possibly could have more sophomore starters in football this fall than at any other time in its modern history, Coach Joe Kuharich said Monday.

Kuharich, at a Notre Dame news conference, showed rare flashes of optimism for the 1961 campaign.

"We feel we can compete with any team in our schedule on even terms," he said. "And we have every reason to believe we'll have a good season."

As usual, the Irish have 10 tough opponents — Oklahoma, Southern California, Northwestern, Navy, Syracuse, Purdue, Michigan State, Pittsburgh, Iowa and Duke.

Last year Notre Dame had a 2-8 record, matching its worst mark ever.

"This season, the squad has the best balance in three years," Kuharich said. "It has more size, depth and experience and is a little more intent and eager to demonstrate its ability."

Much hope of improvement rides with a fine sophomore crop — the first represenattion of recruiting salesmanship by Kuharich, starting his third season as coach at his alma mater.

As many as four or more rookies may be starters, if not when the season opens, then as it progresses. Two exception backs are fullback Jim Snowden of Youngstown, Ohio, and halfback Paul Costa of Port Chester, N.Y.

"They each weigh around 240 pounds, are still growing, and are two of the three fastest men on the squad," beamed Kuharich.

Kuharich says he talks with about 160 high school prospects annually in his talent safaris. He regards a personal interview as even more important than scout reports, high school coaches' appraisals and movie clips.

"Out of 160 I interview, only 50 per cent are passable," he said. "The other 50 per cent are thinking only in terms of 'what's in it for me?' "

DiMag Expounds:

Shadow Of Babe Ruth Looms Over M Boys In Homer Duel

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe DiMaggio says psychology will be working against Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris in their bid to beat Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs in a single season.

"As Mantle and Maris edge up to record possibilities, be it in 163 or 154 games," they will find the shadow of Ruth hovering over them and defying them to do better than he did," Joe said Monday.

"It can be done, but the odds against 61 or better are terrific."

DiMaggio, the famed Yankee Clipper, was among the spectators who saw Mantle pole three home runs in Sunday's doubleheader against the Minnesota Twins, boost his season's total to 43 and move ahead of DiMaggio in ninth place in the career totals with 363.

Mantle currently is 19 games ahead of Ruth's pace and Maris, who has 41, is 16 ahead. Ruth hit 17 of his homers in September.

"When two great hitters like these keep swinging, anything can happen," Joe said.

"Mantle has the better chance because he is a switch hitter. Maris confesses to a weakness against southpaws and, coming down the home stretch, this is likely to build into quite a handicap.

"As Hank Greenberg, Jimmy Fox, Hack Wilson and others discovered, beating Ruth's 60 of 1927 is a very tough job and involves a lot of factors, some of them not seen on the surface."

DiMaggio said that although manufacturers insist there has been little change in the ball, he thinks the curent ball favors the hitters.

"I compared the 1948 ball with one for 1961, and there was an important difference," he added. "There were fewer and bigger, broader stitches on the older ball. These gave the pitchers better control."

DiMaggio said working in the present-day batter's favor is the matter of physique and condition.

"We never heard of vitamins when I was coming along," he said. "In our family, we got meat only on Sundays and then it was cut with a razor. Our players are bigger, stronger, and I believe faster."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

TUESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1961

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Whether you approve things is not always the point. All of us must bow to some changes, alterations. Just make sure which are from due authority, and wise. Strong aspects for gains.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—Idealism should remain intact within the individual, else materialistic gains sway and wreak havoc for humanity's causes. Adjust the soundly practical with your ideals.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Sensibilities felt, some personalities may tend to clash now. So hold all with tact, patience, understanding. Results will be grand, offer you wide field for future attainment.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Waning but still potent Moon configuration urges you to dig to eliminate little errors and faults that could upset a well-planned, efficient day. Root out all petty and likely unpleasant motives.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Resist where you should, but also give in to rightful sources, good suggestions. The unit power can be satisfyingly telling only if motivated by worthy plans, thinking. Planets' aspects more benefic.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Existing those in distress, putting one's self out to aid another is far more gratifying than gaining plaudits and renown, we all find out sooner or later; The sooner, the better, eh?

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—If you "don't feel like" doing a certain thing today, chances are that particular thing NEEDS DOING. Don't fool yourself. Much of day's success must be striven for—by YOU.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Trail-and-error system NOT always necessary to avoid mistakes, learn true ways. If so, others' experiences would not count! Mars suggests you promote talents in stronger manner.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)—Excellent time for your straightforward type of thinking and acting. Don't let others befuddle a clear picture you have of methods and possible results. But be not stubborn either.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)—Think! If you must accomplish something especial, by all means get after it early, so not to clutter late day when new interests and other matters ask attention, as they will.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)—Achieve in YOUR particular work, and do not tire self trying to do the myraid items others suggest. Day's success depends greatly upon YOUR tact and sound decisions.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)—A spot for your diplomacy and tolerance of others' shortcomings to evince itself. If you will not be adamant and WILL be patient, PLUS optimistic, big gains will accrue.

YOU BORN TODAY are of the clever, scintillating, and happily enthusiastic Sign Leo, the Gentle Lion. Thato is no incongruity, the lion is not the aggressively ferocious one purported to be, but when angered, he strikes bold and brave, and does not depend upon assistance to fight his battles. Take careful note of your characteristics, stressing your God-given brain and understanding. Apply gifts as you only can, and attain the honestly admirable place meant for you, whatever your beginning. There is no stopping the well-adjusted Leo-ite; if thoughtful, he can yield a wondrous web of happiness and achievement. Don't strain, neither be indolent at odd moments. Birthdate of: G. F. Morgan, lecturer; Sir Godfrey Kneller, portrait painter; many renowned military and sports leaders.

Bear Stars In Movie At Grand

NO ANIMAL was ever more thoroughly schooled for an appearance in a motion picture than Neewa, the rascally bear who has an important star part in Walt Disney's Technicolor feature, "Nikki, Wild Dog of the North," which starts Wednesday at the Grand Theater.

From Neewa's birth she was trained for Disney's movie. For months she was taught the tricks of the Hollywood trade: how to hold a scene alone without losing her audience and how to act with her co-star, Nikki, a personable Malemute snow dog.

She was even taught how to ride in a birch-bark Indian canoe along the rivers of the Great Northwest wilderness with the human star of the rugged adventure, Jean Coutu.

Until the day the Disney production was completed near Banff, Alberta, Neewa appeared the happiest of creatures and the crew almost sensed that she was looking forward to more play-acting. Then someone broke the news that has crushed many an aspiring starlet. Neewa was through — a "has been' after her first picture!

By this time Neewa had grown to a massive 400-pound mountain bear. She literally ate herself out a glamorous movie career.

Top Winner Featured In Skyline Film

"NEVER ON Sunday," starring Melina Mercouri, winner of the Cannes Film Festival Best Actress Award, will open Wednesday at the Skyline Theater.

A satiric comedy, "Never On Sunday" is the story of a well-intentioned, but inhibited American philosopher who meets a beautiful, but simple Greek young lady, who sells her charms in port of Piraeus. Miss Mercouri portrays the happy harlot, and Dassin is the philosopher. When he attempts to reform her, telling her that she will have spiritual happiness if she gives up her loves, comedy and complications result.

STRAUSSEN—In loving memory of Dorothy Hammerman who passed away August 8, 1955.
We can't say Happy Birthday, dear
The way we used to do
With cakes and candles and presents:

And eternity's not measured
On earth's finite scale of years;
But here, on our heart's calendar,
Today's e'er ringed with tears.
In loving memory,

Stock Split Looks Good

By William A. Doyle

Q. I own some stock which has done very well. It sold for as low as $14 a share earlier this year and is now up over $42 a share. The company recently announced plans to split the stock three for one in September. I assumed this would be good but my broker advises me to sell within the next few weeks.

I have had a lot of faith in this stock — mostly because the company's profits have been increasing rapidly. However, my broker says that the split will put too many shares of this stock on the market. There are now about 210,000 shares of stock outstanding. Does my broker's reasoning make sense to you?

A. Not for one minute. It must be my evil mind but the suspicion pops up that the broker may want you to sell the stock, so that he can collect a commission on the sale.

You're fairly safe in assuming that the upcoming stock split will "be good." A stock split usually has a psychological value. It draws attention to the stock and normally sends the price of the stock higher.

But, as I have often stressed, a split has no real value to stockholders unless there is an increase in the dividend payout.

A split can have certain other intangible values. A three-for-one split triples the number of shares outstanding. You and each of the other stockholders will own three times as many shares as you now own.

With only 210,000 shares outstanding now, the number of shares available for purchase or sale in the open market is rather limited. That's what is known as a "thin market."

After the three-for-one split, there will be 630,000 shares of this stock outstanding. With more shares outstanding, the market for it won't be as "thin." Any sudden surge of buy or sell orders for the stock will be less likely to result in a sudden price change.

Anyway, 630,000 shares are not such an awful lot. Many companies have millions and millions of shares outstanding. As long as the company is doing well, there's no good reason for you to sell your stock.

Q. I owned 100 shares of Ford Motor Co., Ltd. (Ford of England) stock. I received an offer from Ford Motor Co. (the U.S. company) to buy my stock at $20.50 a share, with no other expense to me.

I took the Ford Motor Co. letter and my 100 shares of Ford of England stock to my broker and instructed him to handle this for me. My broker sent me a check for $2,004. When I asked why I didn't receive $2,050, the broker said that Ford Motor paid in sterling — British currency. Another broker says Ford paid off in American dollars. Who's giving me a story?

A. Let's take the story from the beginning. When Ford Motor Co. offered to buy up the Ford of England ordinary stock, the price set was in sterling — 145 shillings and six pence per share. However, Ford Motor Co. paid you and other U.S. sellers of the Ford of England stock in dollars.

The exchange rate between sterling and dollars changes constantly. As a result, the dollar amount paid for each share during the period the offer to purchase the Ford of England stock was in effect varied from $20.15 to $20.50. You should have received somewhere between $2,015 and $2,050 — unless your broker charged you a commission or service fee.

YMCA Day Campers Plan Fishing Trip To Canada

A FOUR-DAY fishing trip to White Lake, Ontario, Canada, for the YMCA Day Campers is being planned for Aug. 14-17. Although the trip is planned as part of the Day Camp program, any youngster desiring to make the trip who registers before the quota is filled may join the group.

The YMCA bus will leave the YMCA in Stroudsburg Monday, Aug. 14 at 7 a.m. The bus will travel north to Scranton and then by Penn-Can Highway to the Canadian border, crossing at the Thousand Island Bridge and then 85 miles north to White Lake Ontario, arriving at 7 p.m.

The group will eat dinner in the fishing lodge and pitch their tents for sleeping within 50 feet of the lodge. Tuesday and Wednesday will be spent fishing for walleyes, northern pike, perch and bass.

The trip back to Stroudsburg will be made on Thursday arriving about 9 p.m.

Quite a few of the boys who made the trip last year have signed up for a repeat performance. The fishing on White Lake they recall as being excellent and the trip was exceptionally interesting. The fishing is done from boats propelled by outboard motors and most of the meals are served inside the fishing lodge.

The noon lunch is cooked on the shores of the lake and consists mainly of fish freshly caught. Anyone interested in the trip is urged to call the YMCA. Jack Chapman will be in charge of the trip and will have several adult counselors as his assistants.

Goldberg Thinks Hoffa No Threat To Labor Unions

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg said that he does not regard James R. Hoffa, head of the Teamsters Union, as a threat to the American labor movement.

The old Senate rackets investigating committee, in repeated unanimous reports, pictured Hoffa as a powerful labor leader so tightly allied with the underworld as to represent a threat to the nation itself as well as the labor movement.

President Kennedy and his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, repeatedly have denounced Hoffa. As counsel for the rackets committee, Robert Kennedy played a major role in producing evidence against the Teamsters Union head.

Network Controls Sought By FCC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal communications commission has made a renewed appeal to Congress for legislation giving it broad authority to regulate television and radio networks short of licensing them.

FCC Chairman Newton N. Minow said that regulation through the licensing of individual stations no longer is adequate to assure that the airways will be used in the public interest.

In a letter to Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate Communications subcommittee, Minow said practical realities of modern commercial TV prevent individual stations from taking any significant part in decisions on the creation, production and selection of network programs.

Senate Okays Increase For Some Judges

HARRISBURG — The Senate has approved a bill which would increase the salaries of Common Pleas and Orphans Court judges in third and fourth class counties. The increase would be from the present $20,000 to $25,000.

The bill would also increase the salaries of Philadelphia and Allegheny judges and magistrates.

In its present form, enactment would cost about $700,000 in additional money. There is no provision for it in the budget.

The latest report is that the bill is bottled up in the House committee because the governor has asked House Democratic leaders not to send it to him without a provision for raising the money to pay for the bill.

There is no provision in the bill for salary increases for jurists in counties above fourth class or for appellate court jurges. Monroe County is classified as seventh class.

Highway Tax Now In Effect

JOHN H. Rauen Jr., acting district director of Internal Revenue Service, Scranton District, called attention to the provisions of the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1961 which increase the rate of the highway motor vehicle use tax.

Rauen explained that the highway motor vehicle use tax applies to the use on the public highways of any highway motor vehicle having a taxable gross weight in excess of 26,000 pounds. Efective July 1, the tax rate was increased from $1.50 to $3 a taxable year for each thousand pounds of taxable gross weight or fraction thereof.

A truck having a taxable gross weight of 27,000 pounds which is used on the public highways in July 1961 would be subject to a use tax of $81 (27 x $3) for the taxable year beginning July 1 and ending June 30, 1962.
